

6TH FORM EUROPEAN CLASSICS COMPETITION affiliated to UNESCO A Ray of Hope

CERTAMEN IN CONCORDIAM EUROPAE REGIONUM OMNIUM

'A Competition to promote harmony in all areas of Europe' www.ciceroeuropa.eu

The name CICERO is an acronym in Latin, as you can see above.

This innovative competition is organised by teachers of Classical subjects across Europe for their 6th form students, illustrating that a study of the Romans provides a worthwhile and valid reason for young people to interact with each other across their national boundaries.

In addition, for schools in Britain this competition provides excellent exam-style practice for students being prepared for AS or A2 Latin translation examinations, as well as an opportunity for extending potential Oxbridge candidates. This is a high profile event which allows participating Classics Departments to raise their profile within their own school community and beyond.

On Saturday 21st March 2009 students in seven different countries across Europe will begin to take part in the third annual CICERO competition.

Students may enter for the L6th or U6th Latin translation and/or the Classics section (this year the topic will be The Myth of Odysseus/Ulysses).

Students answer the same questions at the same time, link with their peers in the different centres by video-conferencing, and compete for both European and national prizes.

Cash prizes of up to £150 and an engraved silver trophy

Signed books from authors including Boris Johnson and prominent Cambridge Classicist Simon Goldhill.

Further information can be found on our web page : www.ciceroeuropa.eu

UK centre: Cranleigh School, Horseshoe Lane, Cranleigh, Surrey, GU6 8QQ

Registration forms can be downloaded or you can contact us at rod@ciceroeuropa.eu

Under the patronage of the Right Hon. Terry Davis, Secretary General of the Council of Europe.

Anne Dicks [Malvern St James]
Rod Jackson [Cranleigh School]
UK organisers