Welcome to Podcasting for Educators

Hi. Welcome to the Podcasting channel written with educators in mind. My name is Donna Eyestone, and I'm currently on the faculty at City College of San Francisco.

I hope this series of podcasts will help you get started created your own podcast channel. And if you already have a channel, these episodes can help you better understand a little more about the technology and issues involved in podcasting.

You'll find a series a short movies, all with closed-captioning, and also supplemental PDF transcripts. You can use these podcasts either for your own learning, or direct your students, faculty, or staff to them.

I'd love to hear from you, so tell me if you find them useful, have ideas for other podcasts, or just send in your questions. I'll be taking the best questions and turning them into new episodes.

Enjoy the podcasts, and now get started making your own channel!
